Ms. Arms,
I am quite glad that you are reading this magazine and the support that we gain from our readers and the rest of the team here. Unfortunately we have no empty spots on our team of reporters even if you were of age yet and it is a dangerous job reporting against the Empire. Even if we did I doubt we would announce it in our magazine but you might be among the first to know and I have no doubt respond.
Sincerely yours,
The Editor.

Bighead L. Arms

Dear Editor
I have to tell you how devotedly I watch and wait for the amazing issues of this awesome and totally fun magazine. I love your magazine so much I have taken to just watch the entire day for the mailman to come to see if this galaxy magazine has come. I am so disappointed whenever it isn't inside the mailbox. I hope that eventually I will be able to be an insider in whatever random rebel base you decide. I hope that this will be printed in your next issue.
Sincerely yours,

Hello Weird 7543

Mr. Shibitoshda,
I have reviewed your letter and the last issue and I don't see any article stating that, where is your reasoning for that letter?
Sincerely yours,
The Editor

Iski V. Shibitoshda

Dear Editor,
I have noticed a flaw in the last issue of the times, it said that the planets are blowing up and mine really isn't, why are you publishing this fatal flaw for unsuspecting readers to read?
Sincerely yours,

Are weapons of mass destruction good to have around?

Dear Horsie,

I was wanting to ask a quick question, I read the last issue of your magazine and that night watched A New Hope for the gazillionth time, and a sudden thought came to me, why would anyone like the Empire have the keys to such a weapon of mass destruction? Especially if it is unsure exactly how much power they actually can handle? I could barely watch the rest of the movie in peace for fear, what if someone we trusted did unleash those weapons on us? We would all be doomed! Thanks for answering!

Your avid reader,

Ms. Slov

X-wings for passengers By: Sarah A.

So one day I was thinking about how an X-Wing would work for passengers, so I looked it up and here's what I found. The movies make it rather clear that X-Wings are used usually for fighting, not necessarily for transporting airsick passengers (mainly the reason I'm saying that is because I get airsick when I'm on a plane). Usually, they are used to fight the Empire in the movies, but occasionally, they were used to transport one person from one place to another. I also saw an article about someone who did try to hitch a ride on an X-Wing, first. They were squished like crazy and second, they almost fell out like five times, I was still laughing after I read that article. Another article stated about how a guy had bought an X-Wing to transport passengers around, but after losing close to maybe one hundred passengers, he returned it to the company he bought it from.

I was hard pressed to think, seriously, one hundred passengers in maybe a week, that's a lot of people! Here's how a ride in an X-Wing would go if you decided to try and sneak a ride on one, you would sneak on when nobody was looking and squeeze in around all the boxes full of explosives afraid that one wrong move would set them off, you try to find a nice place to settle yourself among the boxes, you would hear the X-Wing start and you would spend the rest of the time of your journey squished in between dark boxes hoping that they wouldn't explode and wreck your ride for eternity. Finally, after what seemed like an eternity, you hear the X-Wing's boosters stop and you know that you have finally arrived at your destination, you are grateful that the horrid ride is over and embark quietly, making a note never to do that again. And that is my review on X-Wings for passengers.

Letter to Daisy Ridley, famous actress of Rey

Dear Daisy Ridley,

Hello Daisy, my name is Sarah Abegglen and I am a great fan of yours and of the character you played in Star Wars the Force Awakens. In fact I admire you and her both. I was wondering what do you think of the Star Wars saga ending? I am personally bummed about it and wish it could go on forever.

I am almost 13 years old and have 3 siblings, 2 of whom are younger than me.

I hope that production is going good on number 9 of the Star Wars series and hope to have an answer back from you, but if you are unable to that is fine as well.

Sincerely,

Sarah Abegglen

Dear Sarah,

Thank you so much for your letter to Daisy Ridley! As Daisy is quite busy with exciting new productions, we hope that you don't mind that we here at Lucasfilm© are responding to you on her behalf. We want you to know how much the cast and crew of Star Wars appreciate the support that has come pouring in from fans like you! We are thrilled that you have been so inspired by Daisy and her performance as Rey in the Force Awakens. You must have a lot of passion for the character, and we hope that you can share your love for Star Wars with all your siblings! Thank you so much for writing, Sarah!

We have included an unsigned photo along with a magazine that we hope that you and your family enjoys. May the Force be with you!

Sincerely,

Jim Hanks at Lucasfilm

(p.s. I actually did send that letter to Daisy

Ridley and this is the answer that Lucasfilm sent back to me, it came in the mail

Cool Tatoonine drink

Hi, this short how-to article is about how to make a delicious smoothie that I found for all you hot people on Tatoonine! I wanted to share this with you for the purpose of having this amazing drink in the public. Make it and enjoy!

What you will need: Milk (enough to feed however many people you want to serve):

- Vanilla ice cream (if possible)
- Frozen fruit to make it healthy
- A blender
- A timer set to 1:00-2:00
- (optional) Chocolate chips
- (optional) Chocolate syrup

First of all, you need to pour the milk into the blender, about 2 cups but it depends on how much you are wanting to make, DO NOT ADD TOO MUCH MILK OR IT WILL BECOME TOO WATERY!

After you have put in the milk, it is now time to add in the frozen fruit! Two cupfuls will do just fine but if you like it REALLY fruity than you can add in more.

Now for the ice cream (like I said before any flavor will suffice) put in two scoopfuls and plopp them right into the blender.

Now that you have all of these ingredients inside, close up the blender, turn on the timer, and blend it all together for one minute and thirty seconds to two minutes.

After the allotted amount of time has passed pour some into a cup and enjoy! Warning: Will be cold!

Optional: Add in the chocolate chips and the chocolate syrup in between steps 3 and 4 for a chocolate flavor and chocolate bits at the bottom of the cup!

I hope that you will have a fun time making and eating this drink as much as I enjoy sharing this with you!

Enjoy!

Here's the rest of the letter. As in my answer. In case that wasn't clear.

Dear Ms Slov,

I received your letter about weapons of mass destruction and here's my answer, a lot of people have asked that same question and I'm sure that a lot more people will before this world ends, sources disagree about whether or not weapons of mass destruction should even exist! But my personal opinion is that we need weapons of mass destruction occasionally, most people agree about this aspect of it. Also, the people that have keys to these weapons are people that are trusted, hopefully that trust was well put.

Disneyland!!! A true story by: Sarah A.

When I got out of the car the first thing I noticed was my aching legs "Ouch, my legs hurt!" I whispered to my sister, Emma. She nodded "Yeah I know, right? But look, we're at Disneyland!" I looked around me in amazement, sure enough she was right. I was looking at a huge cement canopy that stretched high above our heads but when it ended, ended in a straight roof. I had to finish my inspection long before I was ready to accommodate a attendant who approached with a rack for holding clothes and suitcases. I studied his nametag, it read, "Carlos, California Grand attendant." "You're going to need two of those." My mom, Angie informed him. I turned away to stifle a giggle at the look on his face at the look on his face, Emma displayed pure innocence. "Um, thanks." Carlos stammered purely surprised. I smiled at his discomfiture and helped to clean out our car. My stomach growled, we hadn't really stopped for food on the way, even though we had snacks in the car. I was quite hungry. Finally, daddy handed the car keys to another attendant that seemed to show up out of nowhere and we headed into the hotel. The twin sliding doors opened automatically, but when put together, they showed a mosaic of Minnie and Mickey walking in a sunset valley. Inside of the hotel was enormous, I was glad to see that I wasn't the only one gaping at the sheer immensity of it and we hurried to catch up to mommy and daddy. We arrived at the check-in desk and talked for a while with a young woman named Sara, before we left, she told mommy that we were great kids, needless to say, she was pleased. Later, we settled into our new room, ready for any new adventures that the next week and a half, where we would eventually have amazing adventures in Disneyland and California Adventure. Kenny also turned 13 when we went and that was two years ago, even now those memories stick with me, and they always will.
